Seicross Story

Here on the planet Colura lived two different tribes. One was the Petras, a highly civilized tribe. Another was the Basrah, a vicious tribe. The larger Basrah all of a sudden declared war on the Petras. The Petras were very civilized, and were pacifists who did not possess enough arms and weapons to protect themselves against the Basrah's attack. They were quickly driven underground without much resistance. A handful of the Petras were left and a few ex-captives who barely escaped from the Basrah were waiting to be rescued. Finally the Petras developed a mini-size rescue bike which they called Gilgitt Petras. They blasted off on Gilgitt Petras from their secret hideout to rescue the Petras who still remained behind.

Race your bike along thrilling backgrounds as you battle alien enemies. The serenity of the space city is broken as players blast off into space from the gate in order to save their people who are left in the battlefield.

How to Play

Seicross consists of three different rotating scenes. There is a bike chase in the obstacle zone, a bike chase in the slippery zone, and a final battle with the Dinosaur Tank across the battery zone. As the game proceeds, the enemy gets tougher. This is more than just a shooting game. You also have to concentrate on avoiding enemy bikes and other obstacles. But you have the energy beam gun to defend yourself.

- Control Gilgitt using Button ✛ . Use Gilgitt to throw the enemy's bike into the wall and other obstacles. You can also destroy enemies with the energy beam gun.

- Unless you destroy an entire battery of enemies, shells will be launched off from behind you. You can't, however, destroy ancient obstacles such as

- If the energy level indicated on the score panel becomes zero, Gilgitt stops functioning. You have to obtain Energy Packs to build up the energy level.

- Be careful not to move around a lot in the slippery zone. If you do, you'll probably slip and hit obstacles.

- You'll get bonus points when you rescue the Petras. However, if you save too many Petras, Gilgitt's energy will be exhausted quickly. So in order to replenish your energy be sure to collect the Energy Pack whenever it comes out.

- Don't touch batteries and . Even if you explode them, their wrecks will remain and become obstacles.

- When you collect the Petras' favorite things on the way, you'll get bonus points. (It's up to you to figure out what the Petras liked.)

Techniques for Ultimate Victory

- The Red bike is especially tough. Be on your guard and attack it with your full strength!

- Always destroy the dinosaur's fossils! If you destroy the Pilpul alien hiding inside the fossil, you'll get bonus points.

- When you destroy the Radar Buoy, Power Star comes out. If you pick it up, your energy beam gets powered up.

- If you try to pick up every Energy Pack, you might go too far and encounter too many obstacles. Be careful to check the meter level and catch only as many as necessary.

- If you save too many Petras, your bike becomes too heavy and the energy will get consumed too quickly. However, Petras will give you bonus points. So choose them carefully.
